Breakthroughs to End Poverty and Hunger

Creating farm development plans for smallholder farmers using satellite data and mobile phones. Training women’s savings group members on finance and farming, so they can diversify diet, improve health and increase income. Empowering female shop-owners as digital payments processors, helping their remote communities bank, pay and save.

These are a few of Grameen Foundation’s breakthrough solutions, designed and delivered using digital technology and local partner networks. Solutions that span a woman’s financial, food and health needs break down long-standing barriers, enabling her to create a hopeful future for herself and her family.

Our goal

REACH 25 million PEOPLE living in poverty by 2025 with innovations that measurably improve their lives.

The most important breakthrough is hers

It is the breakthrough of a woman who is no longer afraid to try something new. She begins saving. She takes out a loan for her farm. She talks to her husband about planning their family. She learns how to protect her children against common illnesses. She takes action, transforming her life, and ultimately breaking the generational cycle of poverty.
Mission
Enable the poor, especially women, to create a world without poverty and hunger.

SINCE 1990
ONE billion PEOPLE have exited EXTREME poverty
